

3.3.4 Descriptors

Nature and Elsevier have started publishing channels to support open access to and reuse of research data. In the articles, the researchers describe the published data, including the methods and technical analyses used to generate/collect the data. Journals publishing only data are normally processed for panel evaluation. However, the panels must assess carefully that journals fulfil the Level 1 criteria (specialisation on publishing research results and peer review).