

4.6.3 Review journals

In the natural and medical sciences review articles typically gain the most citations because of their nature, so the impact factors for journals that only publish reviews are higher than those publishing original research papers. The best review journals can be classified as Levels 2 and Level 3 as long as they do not fill the entire quota.