

4.6.6 Closed society journals

Closed society journals are publication channels that publish only from invited authors or in which society membership is required or advantageous. In the re-evaluation of levels 2 and 3, the panels may take into account whether membership restricts authorship too much and explain this in the grounds for the rating.